The Monthly Newsletter of The Indigo Umbrella

If you like Pyramids, you'll love Nigel Grace's talk!

Mention pyramids and we think of Egypt, right? Perhaps South America too, if we're pushed. I was surprised to learn just how many pyramid sites there are all over the world, with startling similarities in alignment, technical skill and clear signs of a much higher intelligence than the time frame would have us believe.

The site that is probably causing most excitement at the present time is in Bosnia, and I am delighted that Nigel Grace is going to talk to us about pyramids around the world and especially "Pyramid Valley" in Bosnia. He has been personally involved in the excavation work alongside Sam Osmanagich who discovered the site and started unearthing the amazing buildings.

FRIDAY 7th JULY,
7pm - 9pm, tickets £10.
Note the venue - EAST COURT in East Grinstead: beautiful place, lovely gardens.

Hello Indigos!

It's exhausting, isn't it? Newspaper headlines scream carnage and treachery - and that's just the General Election! Innocent bystanders caught up in "terrorist attacks" are interviewed, with gory details squeezed out of them, to go alongside photos of bodies and policemen, to emphasise the point - "be afraid, people, be very afraid!" they are saying, loudly.

The vast majority of the general public will do what they are told. They will be afraid. And that not only opens the doors for draconian legislation in the name of "national security" as happened in the US in the wake of 9/11, it also feeds the very forces that use that fear as lifeblood.

I've had several interesting conversations over these past couple of weeks, stopping people in their tracks and asking them to look behind the tabloid headlines. When I say to you Indigos, "Stand your ground. Speak your truth. Shine your light." this is exactly what I am talking about. Don't get sucked in. Present a balancing point of view without starting an argument. Keep emotion out of the discussion. Don't be judgmental. Have a few good news stories up your sleeve. Don't play the game, don't fan the flames of fear.

Stand back and see it all as part of the bigger picture, the process of upheaval and change that has to come about before we can start again. It is forcing us to make decisions, to examine our beliefs, to trust our inner selves, to listen and follow the still small voice that whispers of love and truth and integrity.

And remember - we all chose to be here at this time in order to experience this unique event, so make the most of it!

Love Jude x

PS - a short & sweet newsletter this month, part of a journey of transition!

Researcher Nigel Grace has been personally involved with the excavation work at the site, and has experienced for himself the amazing healing energies in the tunnels connecting the pyramids.

Faster Broadband, better WiFi coverage - that seems to be top of many people's lists nowadays. But that comes at a price, and for increasing numbers of people, it is a very heavy price in terms of overall health and wellbeing.

This event in Lewes on Sunday 11th June brings together a selection of speakers to highlight in very clear terms the negative effects of these invisible waves on all living creatures.

YOU CAN'T OUTSOURCE YOUR PERSONAL SPIRITUAL JOURNEY

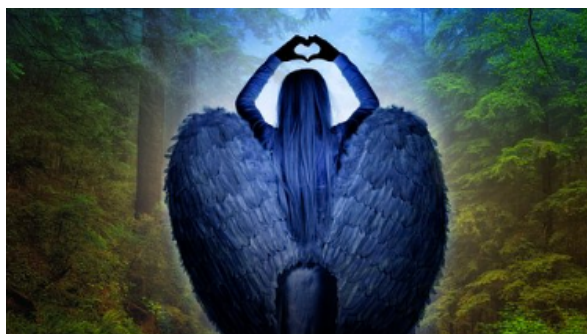

I work by the Rule of Three: if I see something three times, I need to do something with it. So I would like to quote from the latest newsletter from Earth-Keeper.com, and a message channelled from Archangel Metatron by James Tyberron:

"Every soul is seeking answers, striving on their levels, to understand the great mystery of life. But mastery of this noble quest cannot be achieved through a guru or from books. It must be lived and learned, personally, individually, by each soul on the path."

"It is experience that spawns wisdom. The answers to life's meaning, to life's purpose and the seeming enigma of death are discovered individually in the challenging paths and roadways of human life. And that path involves many intersections and elusive forks in the road that may lead one astray."

"One of the tell-tale ways to recognise that you are in the latter stages of your soul-lessoning curriculum in the "University of Earth" is that the forks in the road appear much more subtle, more complex ... and the right direction to take is much less apparent. For as each soul advances along the path of mastery, the "forks in the road" are often no longer clear-cut black / white choices. Most of the more complex are in rather nebulous shades of grey ... and the choices of which way to proceed are far less obvious."

I feel sure many of you have been finding that recently, I know I have. It used to be pretty clear which fork to take but now it sometimes seems as though there is no choice until you look more closely, and you might see a narrow pathway overgrown with brambles of self-doubt and weeds of uncertainty. That is probably the path to take - "the road less travelled" as it were - that will move you along your own personal journey. A friend of mine, delving into remote viewing, says she has been told that, at the start, it may seem easy. A feature will appear and the mind will create a scene around it. But, said the teacher, that is the ego-mind, wanting to please. Look instead for the whisper, the image that you can't quite reach - that's the truth you are seeking.

In other words, if it seems too easy to be true - it probably is! Abraham frequently answers questions by saying, "you never finish, you never get it done." At first I found that rather depressing but then I found it reassuring - this journey we are on is exactly that - a journey. As Archangel Metatron says, "it must be lived and learned personally."

You can't outsource your personal spiritual journey, Indigos. Nobody can do it for you.

Bon voyage, Indigos - dump your excess emotional baggage, travel light, and enjoy the adventure!
